About AAAA

The AAAA was founded by the acoustics societies of Austria, Croatia and Slovenia in 2002 as a new regional association. In 2019 the Hungarian Scientific Society for Optics, Acoustics, Motion Picture, and Theatre Technology (OPAKFI) joined instead of Austria. The original goal of AAAA was to promote all aspects of research in the field of acoustics in the region. In addition, the Association's aim was to improve the overall cooperation among the countries and their respective national societies. Every two years, one of the three member societies of the AAAA organizes a scientific congress on acoustics - the last event took place in Budapest in 2021. The main goal of these congresses is to bring together acousticians from Croatia, Hungary, and Slovenia, as well as from the other European countries, to exchange knowledge, share research outcomes and strengthen mutual cooperation among these societies for the benefit of the whole region.

Looking forward to meeting you in Izola in September 2023!
